Estrada's options

TIT FOR TAT, FORMER PRESIDENT JOSEPH ESTRADA has shown his gratitude to President Macapagal-Arroyo for the pardon she granted him. The other day, he distanced himself from calls for Ms Arroyo's resignation, saying that it is "the people—the poor sector which is the largest part of our society—who should choose and decide who they want to run or replace the government, not the few elites and the churchmen."

EDITORIALS

This statement does not close his options. What if the masa—the poor of whom he claims to be the national leader of—join civil society, the "elites and the churchmen," in calling for Ms Arroyo's resignation. Will he then join the Arroyo-resign call?

Estrada has often talked about "the national interest." What if his advisers and supporters convince him that the ouster of Ms Arroyo would serve "the national interest"? Would he join a people power movement seeking to throw Ms Arroyo out of Malacañang?

[illegible]

That would be poetic justice.

Expensive oil

ALMOST LEFT UNNOTICED IN THE WELTER OF political news last week was the story that oil prices shot to an all-time high of more than $92 a barrel because of the tumbling dollar, a Nigerian output disruption, tensions in the Middle East and supply shortages in advance of the Northern Hemisphere's winter.

No one could say how this human skull got to be exposed at the Wireless Public Cemetery in Davao City. But the eviction of human remains from public cemeteries for their living relatives' failure to pay fees has been a growing concern in the city.

NAGA CITY—REPORTS OF A FISH KILL ARE sending antimining activists pointing their fingers again at a mining operation in Rapu-Rapu Island in Albay, but experts and authorities have yet to determine what caused it.

Asia's Queen of Songs bats for strong bones

And why not? Pilita Corrales has, after all, enthralled audiences worldwide with her legendary back-bending moves for more than three decades now

By Rowena C. Burgos

ASIA'S QUEEN OF SONGS Pilita Corrales joins other high-profile women in a global fight against osteoporosis.

A member of the International Bone Health Ambassadors for five years now, Corrales recently represented the Philippines at the "Breaking the Silence of Osteoporosis" forum held at Madinat Jumeirah in Dubai. Organized by Fonterra, the event also marked the global launch of World Osteoporosis Day and the Global Bone Health Ambassador Network.

Together with celebrity ambassadors from Indonesia, New Zealand, Malaysia and the Middle East, Corrales pledged her commitment to stamp out the disease.

"The impact of osteoporosis is painful and devastating. Please join me in taking simple steps to help prevent this disease so we can enjoy life, independence and physical freedom as long as possible," she said. "One of the easiest things we can do is to make sure we have a diet rich in essential bone nutrients like calcium, Vitamin D, magnesium, zinc and protein."

A performer for more than three decades now, Corrales has enthralled audiences worldwide with her legendary back-bending moves. To help keep her bones strong, she says she drinks two glasses of milk every day and does weight-bearing exercises such as walking thrice a week.

Other ambassadors

Allison Roe, 51, of New Zealand, has been a bone health ambassador for two years now. A champion marathon runner, Roe is also the founder and organizer of the Run to Heal series. In 2002, she was given the Abebe Bikila award at the United Nations for her outstanding contribution to the sport of running.

Zaiton Othman, 57, is a Southeast Asian Games champion and Malaysia's National Sports Council director. With her passion for sports, she continues to participate and win medals at the World Veteran Games.

[illegible], 34, is the host and producer of "Green Apple," a health and wellness program broadcast across the Middle East.

Traditional Javanese dancer Retno Maruti, 60, is a bone health ambassador for three years now. Named Public Figure of the Year in 2000 for her contributions to art and culture, Retno still teaches dance at the Jakarta Arts Institute.

Shocking findings

During the forum, Daniel Navid, chief executive officer of the International Osteoporosis Foundation (IOF), presented State of the Nation Bone Health Reports, the result of a year-long joint research effort by Fonterra and the IOF to provide a quantified view of the social and economic impact of osteoporosis. These studies were done in Australia, Indonesia, New Zealand and the Philippines.

A disease in which the density and quality of bone are reduced, leading to increased risk of fracture, osteoporosis is a global health problem that currently affects approximately one in three women and one in five men over the age of 50.

Often referred to as the "silent epidemic," osteoporosis results in gradual bone loss and occurs without symptoms until the disease is advanced.

The report also states that in women over 45 years of age, osteoporosis accounts for more days spent in the hospital than many other diseases, including diabetes, myocardial infarction and breast cancer.

The worldwide cost of osteoporosis for all ages is projected to increase to $131.5 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the worldwide incidence of hip fracture in men is projected to increase by 310 percent and 240 percent in women.

"Alarmingly, the report on the Philippines showed the overall prevalence of fractures among men and women over 50 years of age was about 13 percent," Navid said. "At present, osteoporosis is not considered a major health priority, so we are calling on the Filipino government and health professionals to make bone health a priority and help educate the public on the simple pre-

When you receive an invitation from the multitalented, multifaceted George Sison, you are out of your mind if you do not accept, pakinggan.

It was held in the truly magnificent entertainment place of mega architect Gerry Contreras. We were taken to a two-story glass house atop a 2,500-sqm mansion, pakinggan, and served cocktails.

Fashionably on time were Italian Ambassador Rubens Fedele and his wife Rosetta; champion marksman and new Tourism (Pasong Tamo Extension) brother Arthur Macapagal and southern belle Marites Jalandoni; political strategist Ramon Ocwa; and our international beauties Gemma Cruz Araneta and Aurora Pijuan, dahlings.

Architect Johnny Hukills and engineer Maurile, happily mingled with attractive Cynthia Pastor and her husband Dr. Ramon Pastor, surgeon of the late Marilyn Monroe, no less, dahlings; and Dr. Efren Vasquez of the excellent Cafe Ivanna.

When asked if he was related to Mauricio, he exclaimed, "I belong to the poor Vasquezes."

Glenda Barretto of Via Mare prepared a superb dinner that was set on the large square center table in Gerry C.'s elevated royal dining room, pakinggan.

The big surprise of the evening was when George introduced his chorister, Edwin Santander, to us. Edwin S. could do Filipino poetry in the tradition of Balagtasan, with Gary as the object of his affection. He brought the house down.

Amid all the laughter, applause, entertainment and endless flow of chilled Moet & Chandon, it was time to leave and go to my next happening, but not before we had thanked our Royal for a Day, George S., for treating us to such an "enchanted" evening, pakinggan.

More options

The second mall featured in the ... redesigned mega Robinsons ... I noticed loads of new large-format signs, great for those who wear eyeglasses and even for those with 20/20 vision, pakinggan.

Health buffs like moi, were so glad to discover "Whole Health," an entire section with tons of healthy products like low-salt, low or no cholesterol, fiber-rich, and low- or no-fat items.

The "Island Favorites" section is worth checking out with its different products from all over the country.

Robinsons' group brother honchos took center stage, welcoming us, dahlings. They included the grand matriarch Elizabeth Gokongwei, senior vice president and group general manager; Robina Gokongwei-Pe, general manager; Jody Gadia, assistant vice president for merchandising; Bobby Mabunta, first vice president for operations; Ramsey Ong, chief ... of Unilever Philippines; Sanjiv Mehta, customer development vice president; Pong Ejercito, head of modern trade; and deputy vice president Pete ...

Girl-about-town Kim Oh hosted the fun informal morning happening.

Then it was time to dig into the endless yummies—a sumptuous buffet brunch from The French Baker and Mickey's Deli, as well as surprise treats from Robinsons Supermarket affiliates.

When brunch was over, it was time to get a grocery cart and shop, dahlings. We spotted a few celebrities like Aiko Prats and Nancy Castiglione.

Before moi dashed off for my late afternoon exercise, I heard Jody G. say the message they wanted to convey was wellness and healthy living. "We're bringing this to our customers, to empower them with more lifestyle options."

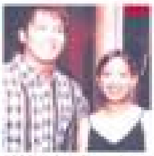

Yeah, pakinggan, it surely was a great way to start my day.

The Revlon Limited Edition Collection made its dramatic entrance via one fab event this year. It was first unveiled during Preview magazine's 2007 Best Dressed Ball at Embassy at The Fort. A press launch followed at the Makati Shangri-La Hotel, pakinggan.

This must-have collection has three main concepts: first, the pleasure of indulgence—pampering your senses with fragrance and texture; second, making your own ceremony—stimulating the mode eyes, lips, and face; and third, a renewed focus on the skin.

But it doesn't end there. Already there are three more exciting must-have products for gals to discover, dahlings.

Tips for a healthier you

YOU CAN BETTER ENJOY LIFE and cope with problems that come your way if you are healthy.

Here are some tips to help you lead a healthy life:

1. Job – Look for a career that is suited to you. Find a job that makes you happy.

2. Relationships – Spend time with loved ones. Life is sweeter when shared with friends and family. A laugh, a hug, and shared moments with people who matter make all the difference.

3. Stress – Lose yourself. Spend quality time with the most important person—you. Read a book, get a massage, or just have some alone time to meditate or pray.

4. Fitness – Hit the gym. Get moving. Do at least 30 minutes of physical activity. Commit to a routine, or find fun ways to stay in shape and feel good, like dancing, gardening, swimming, walking, or jogging.

5. Diet – Watch what you eat. Fruits and vegetables and less saturated fat can help improve your health and reduce the risk of cancer and other diseases. It will also make you feel less sluggish.

Hydrate at all times to maintain energy. The body loses about 2½ liters of water each day.

But during periods of intense physical activity, sports, exercises, workouts, or during a busy work day, you may need more than just water.

Maintain electrolyte balance with 100 Plus, a high-performance beverage. It rehydrates body during leisure and labors while allowing rapid absorption of vital electrolytes and minerals for continued energy.

The beverage provides potassium, calcium, sodium, chloride, phosphate and carbohydrates, replenishing minerals lost through sweat or physical activities.

100 Plus has less sugar than many beverages in the market. It is lightly carbonated to give a crisp taste, leaving you feeling instantly refreshed.
